

-----
Title: Sickness in Magincia

Author: Unknown
-----

*a picture of a strange purple flower*

At what seems to be the true year anniversary of the last Magincian plague a much different ailment has effected all of our glorious island. Strange purple flowers have appeared throughout the island. From what began as a handful of flowers has spread into literally a field of purple over the island's grass area. At first most thought nothing of this until people started to get sick with coughing.

This malady affected the children first as well as the senior citizens of the island causing many casualties within the first month. By close to the third day of the plant's discovery the island had been cut off to all travel and a strong investigation was begun. All seemed to be running well as the citizens were given safety instructions and told to stay away from the plants decreasing the number of afflicted victims drastically. When Khay'Thall became sick Alizia, Angelique and the now defected Draven were already searching for cures and answers.

During the last Regency meeting the issue of the sickness was brought up and Humanis continues to look for information as to who planted the flower and how it could be removed. Those who caused Magincia her problems have much to fear.